Do the math on Dr. Linda Lesniak. A bachelor’s degree in elementary education + master’s degree in mathematics + PhD in mathematics = She’s more than held her own in a male-dominated field. Before she came to Western Michigan University, she’d barely left the state of Indiana. Flash forward to today, and Lesniak’s life in mathematics has taken her around the globe as well as garnered her many accolades.
Western Michigan University’s educational and instructional technology program has been recognized as one of the best programs for online learning at the master’s level by OnlineMastersDegrees.org (OMD). The program earned top honors for overall quality, affordability and commitment to student success.
